Golf Player on Stand in Orpet Murder Trial.

Tells of Finding Girl's Body in Helms Wood.

Waukegan, Ill., June 15.—The footprints of two persons led through Helms woods to the spot where Marion Lambert's half-frozen body was found. One of these persons was a woman; the other, evidently, a man. William Marshall, a golf player, found these footprints and pointed them out to Frank Lambert, who was frantically trying to find his missing daughter. Together Marshall and the half-crazed father followed the double footprints through the snow, till suddenly they saw the girl's body and leaped forward, forgetting for a moment the tragic significance of the double track.

Marshall went on the stand in the trial of Will Orpet for the murder of Marion Lambert. His was the most damning testimony that has yet been brought against the young college student.

Try as they might, Orpet's lawyers were unable to shake the golf player's story of the double footprints. Two tracks led to the body of the girl who had died of poison. Beyond that, there was but one, that of the man.

Returned to See Body.

When Lambert found his daughter dead he swooned and Marshall had to carry him away. But Marshall returned to the task. The man's tracks turned to the south from the body. Then, evidently, the man had come back, taken another look at the girl and fled, this time to the north.

Marshall admitted the tracks had been slightly obscured and at times were difficult to follow, owing to the undergrowth in the woods.

"But," he intimated, "there never was a time when we lost the tracks entirely."

The significance of this is the state's evident intention to prove that Orpet was at Marion's side when she took the poison.

Showed "Alibi" Letter.

Orpet's famous alibi letter was also brought into the case. Orpet's father went on the stand for a moment and admitted having received it. This was the letter which Orpet gave to a friend to be mailed at the very time when Orpet was with Marion Lambert, thus making it appear that he was not with her in the woods.

Marshall's testimony, however, occupied most of the day's proceedings. At the request of the state, he vividly illustrated how Marion Lambert's body lay when he and her father found it. With his right hand on his own breast, as Marion's hand was clasped, Marshall slumped down in the witness chair and went through the desired pantomime.

His Story of Killing.

Wagoner High School Instructor Says Boys Were Shot in Struggle.

Muskogee, Okla., June 15.—Corley P. McDermott, Wagoner high school teacher, on the witness stand in the district court here told his story of the affray in the woods near the school at noon on February 16, in which Edgar Watts, a pupil, lost his life.

Rising from the witness stand, McDermott outlined the least struggle. He said, Edgar Watts had followed and Clark Moss had entered behind Watts, locking the door. At an exclamation from Watts, McDermott turned and found Moss holding a revolver in his face. He struck. It was discharged. Edgar Watts fell dying. In the struggle with Moss, the revolver was fired several times more, McDermott did not know how many times. He was horrified to see Moss fall to the floor, his face covered with blood, he said.

Moss, as the state's star witness, had testified that McDermott had first shot him in the back and then standing above him had shot him three times more as he begged for his life.

McDermott was preceded by Edith Mosier and Mary Jane Boyd, school girls, who testified that they found a pistol in their instructor's pocket the night before the killing.

Edith found it and went to tell Mary. When she returned, she said there was no weapon there. The girls were bloomers. It was February and cold, and they wanted a drugstore drink that is how they happened to have McDermott's overcoat, they testified.

SORE AT THE ALLIES

Greece Especially Laments Their Disregard for U. S. President.

Athens, June 14, via London, June 15.—The attitude of the allies towards Greece was denounced at a number of meetings held here today at which resolutions were adopted expressing loyalty to King Constantine and confidence in the policy of Premier Skouloudis.

The resolutions protested against the blockade of Grecian ports established by England and France and denounced the conduct of the allies toward neutral nations and especially towards the president of the United States of America. A feature of the resolutions was that the king was referred to as "Our Glorious Sovereign, King Constantine XIII."

This title placed the monarch in the line of the ancient rulers of Constantinople.

BRYAN SCRAP IN NEB.

After Three-Day Caucus, Delegates Agree to Compromise.

St. Louis, June 15.—After three days' caucusing, the Bryan and anti-Bryan factions of the Nebraska delegation have compromised and elected J. J. Thomas of Stuart, Neb., member of the platform committee.

Thomas, though elected a Bryan ticket at the primaries, was referred to by the anti-Bryan faction as a sympathizer of their cause. W. D. Oldham, the anti-Bryan candidate for platform committee, was named chairman of the delegates, in pursuance of the compromise agreement, and W. J. Thompson, the first candidate for platform committee, was named on the committee to notify the president of the renomination. The controversy in the delegation involved the prohibition question.
